Project Description

The newly built Falkensteiner Hotel in the Austrian town Schladming features 130 rooms and suites designed with modern architecture and inspired by Alpine lifestyle. Its architectural mix combines urban lifestyle with the charm of a mountain hut, thus being the ideal starting and ending point for excursions into the ski and hiking paradise Schladming-Dachstein.

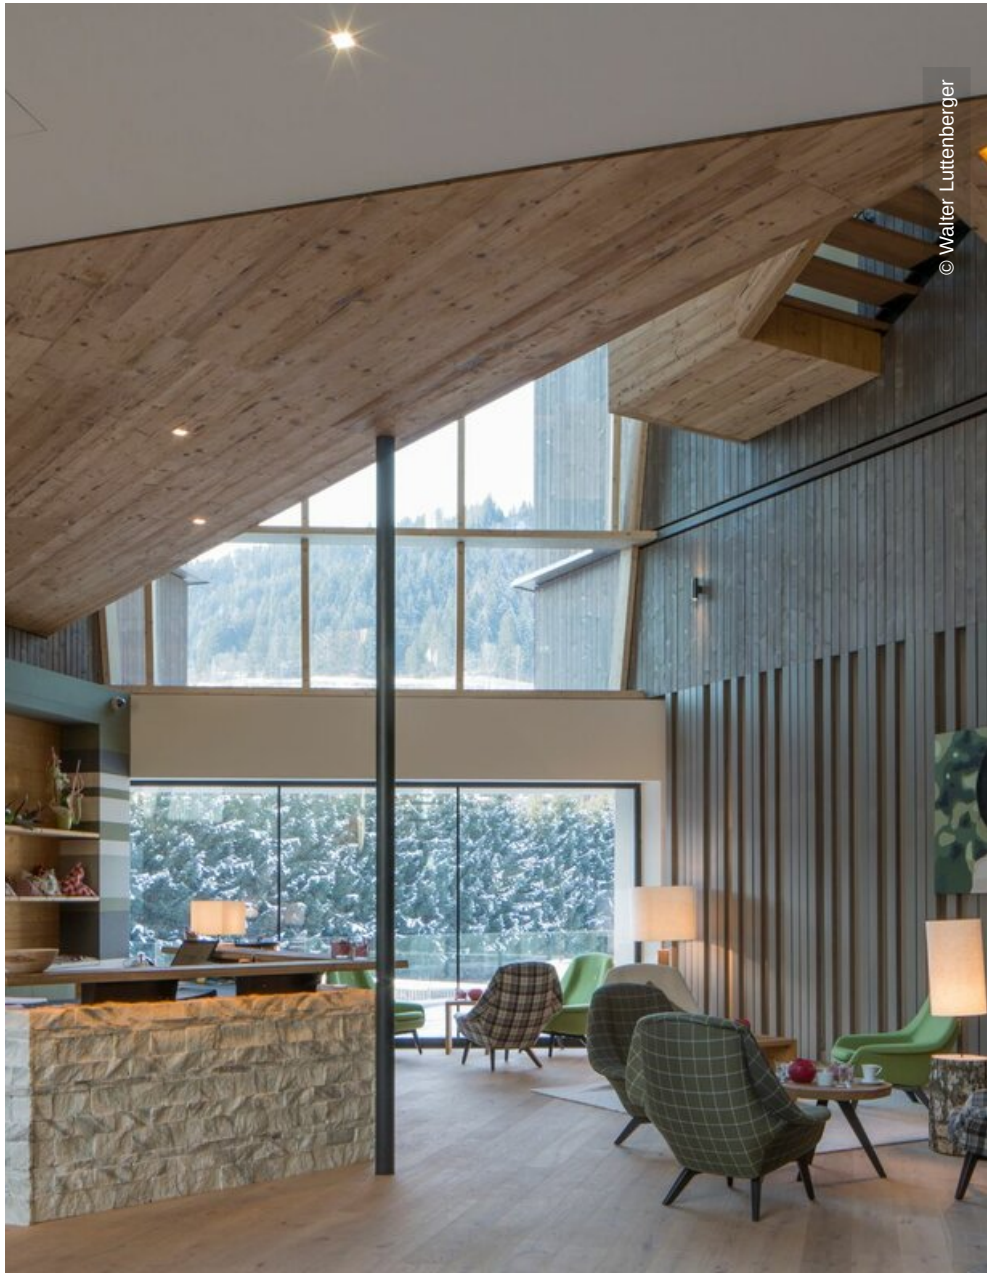

In order to give the hotel its charming mountain hut design, wood was chosen as a primary building material. Joinery specialist Lindner Mobilier s.r.o. was then contracted with the fit-out of the hotel´s public areas.
